- Virginia Department of Health (VDH)
Maria Altonen reported that VDH recently hosted the first in-person Rape Prevention and Education (RPE) grant recipient meeting since the pandemic. VDH is partnering with the Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Action Alliance (VSDVAA) to host four listening sessions intended to improve economic supports for victims. These listening sessions will occur June 11 (Fredericksburg), June 26 (Newport News), July 12 (Wytheville), and July 17 (virtual). VDH is working with "1 in 6" which focuses on men's experiences of sexual assault. VDH will host two, one-day related trainings on June 13 and June 20.

Past Business

- Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Program Professional Standards
Amber Stanwix, Professional Standards Operations Coordinator with DCJS, reported that the updated Professional Standards manual was approved by the Professional Standards Committee on April 8, 2024. The Professional Standards guidelines and procedures were also recently updated. DCJS will host informational sessions on the revised manual and guidelines on July 10 and July 17, 2024. The next round of accreditation will start with agency self-assessments, which will be open September 3-27, 2024.

- Virginia State Crime Commission Language Access Study Request
Prior to the meeting, the Crime Commission sent an email informing the Committee that they are not able to include the Committee's Language Access study request as part of its studies for this year (SFY 2025). If the Committee would like to make a similar request of the Crime Commission for state fiscal years 2026 or 2027, they should submit another letter with that request. The Committee discussed the possibility of asking a college or university to conduct the survey or asking DCJS and the Supreme Court to work on this issue. The VSDVAA will reconvene the work group that made the request to discuss next steps.

New Business

None received.

Other Member Announcements

Jonathan Yglesias, VSDVAA, announced that they are hosting an Economic Justice Summit at Hampton University on June 27, 2024. They also have a foundation grant that provides travel scholarships.

Public Comment

In response to the earlier discussion about how to proceed with a language access study, Eileen Longenecker, Supreme Court of Virginia, informed the Committee that the Supreme Court's Office of the Executive Secretary is not staffed to conduct studies and therefore they have limited capacity for such work. Also, the language access work group did not hold public meetings the last time they came together. If courts, law enforcement, and probation are being discussed, it would be helpful to be a public meeting so the public can appear to address questions and provide information.
