g) Residential Retaining Walls – License Requirements

Eric Olson, Executive Director informed the Board that in conducting research for an unrelated project, board staff was able to identify 13 contractors within a 50 mile range of Richmond that performed construction and repair services for retaining walls. The scope of the work conducted by these contractors was verified by photographs on their respective websites and customer reviews. It was also ascertained that two of the companies focused their work on commercial retaining walls with the other eleven primarily staying in the residential arena.

Residential Retaining Walls

Further research was able to determine that one of the companies does not hold a license, the two companies that perform commercial work hold the highway/heavy classification, three of the contractors hold the residential building classification, and the other seven hold the landscape services contracting specialty. Currently, the Board, in a policy reaffirmed in June of 2018, requires that contractors that construct retaining walls that require a permit hold the highway/heavy classification. Four of the contractors provide documentation on their websites that they construct retaining walls that would require the highway/heavy classification and it is reasonable to assume that the other three do as well. All of the companies have been licensed for more than five years, with the longest having held a license for more than 20 years.

A review of DPOR's Enforcement Tracking System found that, of the seven contractors that hold the landscape services specialty on their license, only one has ever been found in violation of the regulations and that was for using a contract that did not meet the Board's requirements. This data would suggest that the companies that hold the landscape services specialty on their license hold the minimum level of competency to perform the construction and repair of residential retaining walls.

For this reason staff recommends that the Board amend its standing policy and allow contractors holding the landscape services specialty to perform the construction, removal, and repair of retaining walls on residential property. The construction, removal, and repair of retaining walls on commercial property must be done by contractors holding the highway/heavy or commercial building classifications. This policy would become effective immediately and would be considered for inclusion in the Board for Contractors Regulations during the next review of specialty definitions.

Motion was made by Mr. Middleton and seconded by Mr. Hux to amend the current policy and allow contractors holding the landscape services specialty to perform the construction, removal, and repair of retaining walls on residential property.

The motion was approved with a vote of 14-0-0. Ayes: Redifer, Dyer, Ayres, Magruder, Groh, King, Middleton, Hux, Johnson, Mitchell, Plummer, O'Dell, Tomlin, and Trenary. Nays: None Abstain: None Absent: Oliver, and Bynum-Coleman.

h) Statistical Report (licensing and examination data)

Eric Olson, Executive Director informed the Board of the current statistics for the Board for Contractors. The report included the population of contractor licenses, top 15 specialties, Board actions for 2019, and the top ten violations for 2019.

Statistical Report

i) Regulatory Report – implementation of MSC specialty

Marjorie King, Regulatory Board Administrator informed the Board effective August 1, 2019 the miscellaneous specialty would be in effect for specialties that are so unique or specialized that they do not fall into the current specialties. Applicants for the new specialty will be required to have their application approved by the Board using the current non-routine application procedures.

k) Board Member Training Conference

Board Member Training Conference

Eric Olson, Executive Director informed the Board of the upcoming Board Member training the first week in October. The training would take place at the Double Tree in Chesterfield County. This will be for all board members and, while not required, will be highly recommended. This training will be similar to the New Board Member Training Seminars that were offered by DPOR in the early 2000's. More information will be provided as the date is closer. Board members are requested to block the dates on their calendars so that they may attend.
